is the ideal way to correct constitutional defects in the constitution

Drain is the most wonderful health food known! Bruntates a human life would be ruined if all the people would not drain regularly, but it is not so simple as it sounds. Constipation can be blamed as a starting point of 90% of the ailments!

Drain is deliciously palatable from what Jerry's Drain, cooked and drained, is made of. It is a relief from constipation, it cures gas, and it cures flatulence. We guarantee that it will prove a satisfaction to at least two families, should we take away their, Cereals, and their, Fruit, and their, Vegetables.

Please try, doctors the use of Kellogg's Bran for constipation. It is so very sure, effective, and a permanent relief, it is eaten regularly, but it is the best way to correct constipation.

Kellogg's Bran is not a cathartic, it is nature's food that it is not only purges your palate but safeguards your health! Start the children eating Kellogg's Bran, it is the best food for babies. It is the best food for the family, it is a cereal or for other cereals. Use it generally, making muffins, macaroons, raisin bread, etc. in a hundred appetizing ways. Kellogg's Bran is the best, not ever else.

It is consistent use of Kellogg's Bran will restore a "plump" skin and purify the blood.

It is consistent use of Kellogg's Bran will give you a strong, regular, powerful and health from the "inside" and "outside". Your sex has this.

It is the way to a happy health, invite to keep Kellogg's Bran in the dining room at all times.

Start it in your hotel.

NEWS OF DAY AT SCOTSDALE BRIEFLY TOLD

St. John's School Opens With Attendance of 344; More Coming.

TOWNSHIP TERM BEGINS

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, Aug. 29.—The St. John's Episcopal School opened yesterday with an enrollment of 344. It is expected the total enrollment will reach 350.

Township Schools Open.
The East Huntingdon Township school opened yesterday but it will be several days before D. P. Davis, the supervising principal, will be able to determine the exact number enrolled. The vacancies in the teaching corps have been filled as follows: Grades, Dethman, Mary Berg; Chapel, James Gordon. Miss Golden of Avalon was elected to fill the vacancy in the school.

Ernest Berth of Auburn, Ind., will be coach at the high school. Although about three of the best "men" went out with last year's class it is still hoped to have a very good football team. No schedule has been arranged yet.

Coach Berth has taken a room at Alverton to be close to his team and will put the men through some intensive training to shape them up for the opening of the season.

A board meeting will be held this evening.

Vacancies Filled.
Miss Ruth Schellier of Greensburg has been elected to fill the vacancy in the grade schools of Scottdale, and Miss Ruth Faust of Mercersburg, a graduate of Hope College, has been elected to teach English in the high school, to take the place of Miss Eva Hittenshouse, who resigned to teach in the Atlantic City High School.

Patrick Mulroy, 70 years old, died at his home at Everston yesterday morning. Mr. Mulroy was a veteran employee and pasteurizer of the H. C. Frick Coke Company. He is survived by his wife and three sons, Martin, James and Michael, and one daughter, Mrs. Mary Gallagher of Salem, O. Formerly a Scottdale resident, is visiting friends here.

Woman Injured in Fall.
Mrs. Rachel Downing of Broadway fell yesterday and sustained a fracture of the shoulder. As Mrs. Downs was going through her yard her foot caught on a piece of wire. She was taken to the Memorial Hospital at Mount Pleasant.

Band Concert Tonight.
There will be a band concert by the Scottdale Military Band at Loucks Park this evening at 8 o'clock.

Personal News.
Miss Mary Gallagher of Salem, O., formerly a Scottdale resident, is visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lippe returned home on Sunday from their wedding trip to the Great Lakes, Niagara Falls and Buffalo.

Mrs. Leroy Keslar has gone to Washington, D. C., to visit her daughter, Mrs. Floyd Hartman.

Says Can't Be Done

"My experience with doctors and medicines caused me to lose faith in both, and when a friend told me that May's Wonderful Remedy would cure my stomach trouble, I told him, 'It can't be done.' However, he finally persuaded me to try it and to my surprise it did. All symptoms of acute indigestion and gas have disappeared. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allows the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. A. A. Clarke and druggists everywhere.—Advertisement

BUSHEL OF DYNAMITE IN TENT COLONY

State police Sunday afternoon found a bushel basket full of dynamite, several of the sticks with fuses attached hidden behind an out house near the tent colony at Isabella. The basket was well covered with hay and it was with some difficulty that the authorities finally found the object of their quest.

The officers arrested Steve Menck, said to be the vice-president of the local at Isabella, and placed him in the county jail charged with unlawful possession of dynamite.

The discovery was the first wholesale finding of dynamite since the shooting near Point Marion several months ago when officers found a large quantity of explosives.

"It was further proposed that a committee of 10 should be appointed, made up of the five Brotherhood chiefs who were acting as mediators and the five railroad presidents who were meeting with them, and that this committee should have power to hear and make final determination concerning any matters of misunderstanding growing out of the strike, and which might arise up to and beyond the date of May 1, 1932. It was believed by the railroad executives that few matters would be referred to this committee providing both parties to the controversy were willing to approach the subject in a spirit of conciliation and this the railroad executives pledged themselves to do.

"A memorandum setting forth the above terms was submitted to the 52 railroad executives of the majority group and they accepted it. It was also submitted by the mediators to Mr. Jewell and his associates and they rejected it. It should be pointed out here that the railroad executives, in accepting the proposed basis of adjustment, had in effect granted the substance of all that the striking shopmen asked for as it would have put all the men to work at once at the same class of work as of June 20, and at the same terminals with all passengers and other shippers privileges unimpaired. The leaders were unwilling to have the men return to work even on such conditions unless the companies would agree that on the very day of their return they would be put back on the roster as of June 20 and ahead, where necessary, of men who had remained in the service.

"The railway managers felt that the seniority rights, which had been gained by the employees who remained in the service under well established rules, were as much a part of their compensation as the money which they had received in wages, and they were not willing under any circumstances, nor did they feel that they had a right, morally or legally, to take from the men who remained at work any part of their compensation.

Whether represented it money earned or privileges acquired, I think it must be admitted that the railroad executives of the majority group in their efforts to reach an agreement, made every reasonable concession possible in order to accomplish that result.

They are not willing, however, to look upon their promise to the men already in the service, whether the promise was verbal or in writing, as a scrap of paper to be thrown aside at will. Short of that one thing they were willing to grant to other concessions which the men requested. It must be apparent therefore that no compromise settlement of the situation is possible unless the railroad executives are willing to accept the policy that a promise or contract is something to be broken and not something to be kept.

"The railroads must keep their obligations to get the men who are in their employ and there is clearly now but one course left, namely, to continue to build up their force as rapidly and effectively as possible and this the Baltimore & Ohio is proceeding to do."

Hay Fever Relief

May be Had Right at Home

WHILE there is no certain "cure" for hay fever, Vicks in many cases will give relief. As a preventive, keep Vicks up the nostrils, especially when exposed to dust.

To clear the head, moist Vicks in a spoon or tea kettle and inhale the vapors.

For relief during a night attack, rub Vicks over the spinal column from the neck to the hips. Then apply over throat and chest and cover with hot flannel cloth.

Leave the bed covering arranged in the form of a funnel so that the vapors arising may be freely inhaled.

High School Gridders Will Meet Coach and Captain This Evening

Meeting Tonight Will Be Followed by Light Practice Tomorrow.

LINE MATERIAL HUSKY

Coach C. H. Wind of the Conneltsville High School football team arrived in this city today and together with Captain Dale Whippley will meet tomorrow morning and new aspirants for places on the team. Eleven at the High School this evening. The coach is eager to get on the field with his boys as it is felt much work of a preliminary nature may be carried out before the opening of school which will enable the squad to save precious time after the term has begun.

Football interest has advanced remarkably in the past few days in Conneltsville. The spirit of the youths had seemed indifferent for a time but the announcement of the coming of the coach and the coach's weather has produced a marked change.

Captain Whippley has been active at various periods through the summer and has been working hard to get the best material into the school. Players on last season's team who seemed to be just kids, have grown into young men and there are those who should develop into big powers.

A recruit who may be expected to show something is Van Marletta. Only a youngster as yet he is much larger than many of the Varsity men and with three seasons ahead of him should be a big factor in local grid circles before his graduation days.

Another lad of weight who never quit trying last year is Seymour Rigger. Things are expected from him this season and if he makes good he will fill a big hole in the line. Merle Pierce looks again as big as he did last fall and "Mickey" McCormick has gained lots of weight which should be valuable in his backfield position as he can easily carry it without losing his speed. "Summer" Noid has been working outdoors throughout the summer and is in fine condition. Playgrounds work and tennis have kept his speed and weight equally balanced and he is reported to be coming back this year to make his best efforts for a place.

Another young chap who may develop into a valuable player is "Bud" Lindmonds. This husky youth is as big as any boy in his class and although he is only about five feet two inches in height, he has close to 135 pounds or more of bone and muscle. He has been in the mountains most of the summer and is also in shape to begin his training. He reported to last year with the scrubs and got the benefit of some good instruction which makes him a better prospect this season. He may suddenly develop as did his brother Homer, a member of the 1920 team, who became a virtual demon, seemingly overnight.

Out of town students are also reported to include a couple of young bloods who may prove valuable assets before the season is very old. All in all, the Conneltsville line should present great strength this year and if this proves to be so it will give Coach Wind more time to work on his backfield, which really is causing some worry. However, there is sufficient strength there for an optimistic person to see something like a silver lining.

A number of fans were disappointed when a box score of the Johnstown-Conneltsville game at the Wood City Saturday was not available yesterday. For their benefit it is being published today. The score follows:

WORRY LOSHS GAMES FOR GOLFERS

Walter Hagen, British Open Champion.

Lack of good judgment and attempting the almost impossible has lost more golf matches for both good and bad golfers than anything else. It is good philosophy to forget the missed shot and think about making the next one a good one.

One day in an important match Walter Hagen hooked his tee shot out of bounds and someone sympathized with him and his reply was: "All I have to do is hole a long putt and I will get it back." This showed that he was not worried, and sure enough on the second hole following he holed a putt from 30 feet. "Waiting to the next tee, he said to his friend. See, I got it back already."

There is nothing worse than pressing yourself to try to make up for a bad one that you just played. Sometimes the results are very disastrous. If we could train ourselves to forget badly played shots and hope to even it up by holing a long putt or sticking an approach to the pin, we would lower our score and make the game much easier mentally. The moral is, "Forget the bad ones and concentrate on making good ones."

town tournament which opens Wednesday. Other local players who have filed entries are Frank M. Wright, L. K. Dick Jr. and Reid Pendleton. John Gans and Charles Evans are counting on entering the junior tournament but up to last night had not received their entries.

The Johnstown football team with 25 candidates has gone into training camp at Bedford.

Max Carey has exceeded 1,700 hits during his major league career.

St. Louis has not enjoyed a world baseball series since 34 years ago.

An excited crowd never stops to think that an empire's armor does not protect his feelings.

Club owners protest against gambling and still they pay $100,000 for a bush league experiment.

Jim Elliott southpaw with Terra Haute who looked so good in the spring has broken down.

Infielder Galsky has been released to the Syracuse International league club by the St. Louis Cardinals.

Some ball players are so thirsty that they try to old the wear and tear on their lips by taking longer steps.

Babe Ruth says he can't understand his poor work with the bat. Perhaps the man who writes his stuff is in a slump.

The American league has appropriated $100,000 to build a monument to baseball in East Potomac park, Washington.

From the baseball standpoint, a man must be an awful bunter who would play golf the morning he had an afternoon for baseball.

A vivid imagination is that of the baseball fan. In midsummer he can hear the peanut shapping in the breeze of next season.

Rabbit Marville seems to be more proud of a 71 card at golf than his batting average, according to Pittsburgh baseball reporters.

Joe Fogarty, of Phila, one of the greatest baseball players in professional ranks in his day may coach the Yale team next fall.

Perfect efficiency in athletics is a boy's who plays 18 holes of golf in the morning and then plays a double header at baseball in the afternoon.

More motorist than ever are using ATLANTIC Medium

Atlantic Medium is the motor oil choice of a vast army of motorists and truck owners. Not only because this oil meets the requirements of practically every type of motor, but because of its extraordinary efficiency range—dependable lubricating and piston-sealing qualities under all sorts of operating conditions.

Atlantic Medium is composed of only the crude-oil hydrocarbons best suited for the work assigned to it. Atlantic laboratory research, based on twenty-five years of study of automotive lubrication, has determined what the hydrocarbons are. Atlantic refining engineers have found the way to separate them from the elements less capable of resisting the onslaught of heat, friction and pressure.

Atlantic Medium is right. You cannot buy a finer lubricant for your engine.

Drace made no answer for a moment, but bent a searching eye upon his new servant. Somehow the man's soul seemed to shine transparent in his face; and through it Drace saw sincerity; moreover the longing of youth for comradeship was strong within his lonely soul and won him from reticence.

"Liberty," he said, "did you ever hear of a man named Stepho la Vitte?" Liberty nodded. "Yes, I've heard of him; they say he's an outlaw, a smuggler."

"Add worse," said Drace. "He's the man who—Liberty, give me your word, your oath, that you'll keep this a sacred secret!"

Liberty gave his word and his oath with a certain quiet dignity, and Drace went on.

"Liberty, before the war my father, Alfred Drace, was manager of a line of steamboats on the Ohio. In his employ was the creole Stepho la Vitte. After a time it came to my father's knowledge that Stepho was not only dishonest in ordinary dealings but had been guilty of piracy along the Gulf coast. And so my father dismissed Stepho from a position which the creole's dishonesty had made lucrative and valuable to him."

"Just after that," Drace went on, "the war broke out. La Vitte became a guerrilla—one of the men of Quantrell's stamp, who kept out of the army but who gathered in bands and lived by rapine along the border. I was only a little boy, Liberty, when La Vitte's band of guerrillas crossed the Ohio near Cincinnati and raided the little town where we lived. But the horror of that night still burns like a flame in my brain, Liberty."

Drace stopped, drew from a breast pocket a card and handed it to Liberty. On it was written, in bold black characters: "Stepho la Vitte, with the compliments of Alfred Drace's son, Virgil."

Liberty read the card, then looked inquiringly at Drace.

"Liberty," the young man explained, "those guerrillas under La Vitte burned our little town and killed nearly every grown man in it. For word was brought of their coming, and the men—nearly all of them married men or old—who had not gone to the war, seized weapons and went out to defend their houses."

"They were massacred almost to a man. . . . And it was not plunder alone that led them to choose our little town for a target, Liberty, but a passion for revenge. For next morning my father was found hanging to free. And on his breast was pinned a card that read: "Alfred Drace, with the compliments of Stepho la Vitte."

"Liberty looked again at the card he held in his hand, then handed it back to Drace. "I reckon I understand now, master," he said. "You are hunting this Stepho to—"

"To hang him as high as Haman and to pin that card on his breast," declared Drace passionately. "While my mother lived, Liberty, I could do nothing. You know how women are in such matters. But—she died this spring, Liberty, after long years of grieving for the man that d-d out-law struck for my honor and my father's memory—to carry justice to that murderer."

With an awkward gesture Liberty stretched forth a hand, caught Drace's and wrung it warmly. "You're like—like Hamlet!" he exclaimed. "I'll do my best to help you, Hamlet. Let me be your Elton as well as your slave."

Drace returned the fervent handshake. "My Elton!" he agreed. And then, solemnly again, he added: "It's a worthy cause, Liberty. It's not alone my private vengeance, but the wrongs of a whole community that the ordinary machinery of justice can never right. Why, Liberty, dozens of men were murdered by those drunken gangs, little children were good-under the hoofs of their horses, and women—Near our house, Liberty, an old couple live in poverty. At the time of Stepho's raid their son and his young wife lived next door to them; they were well-to-do and prosperous. The day of the raid the son had received ten thousand dollars from the sale of some lands. When rumor of the raid came, he hurriedly hid the money somewhere in the neighborhood, scribbled on a piece of paper the location of that treasure and gave it to his wife before he went out with the other men to fight. Next morning he had been shot; and the young wife had been carried off by those devils—her child with her, after the Indian custom, to keep her from suicide. No one knows what became of her. Nor has that money ever been found. Liberty, if I could find Stepho, get him in my power, I believe I could at least learn what became of that poor young woman—possibly find that paper and learn where to find the money those poor people so sorely need; for once, some years ago, a mysterious fellow was caught digging about their yard. . . . But I've talked enough, Liberty. Action! Do you know any more about La Vitte?"

"Not much," replied Liberty. "I believe he is often seen up the River, and sometimes down on the coast. He has his friends, and nearly everybody else is afraid of him. So you—we—must keep dark till we get our chance. And you mustn't show your feelings in your face. Remember, master, you're just a young man out to see the world. I'm—here comes Colonel Josh. Suppose we talk to him. He was a mule-buyer in the war and may know something about Stepho."

The door was darkened. In came Joshua Mortimer, the man whom Miss Lucy had gazed with quivering concern. He had dodged in for a smoke, he said, when Shottle had introduced him to his master, and it was evident that it was his aim to impress Drace with his military bearing. He had not been actually in the army, but had acquired the title of colonel from his adventurous work of buying mules for the Confederate government. The Colonel "looked it" that Drace was from the North.

"Yes, but some of my people were from the South."

"Ah! I congratulate you, sir. I have a match, thank you."

Drace had offered him a light. He filled his pipe with tobacco crumbs dug out of his breeches pocket, and long legs crossed, sat back to enjoy himself.

"Well, sir, Mr. Drace, the war has been ended some years; and if we forget an evil as easily as a virtue, sir, it will soon be only a dim memory. I had enough of it."

"But you were not really in the army, Colonel Josh," the slave spoke up.

The Colonel pulled at his pipe, stretched his neck and appeared to fish for something down to his collar. "Liberty, my duty was scouting and the incidental picking up of mules, as the records of the War Department will be pleased to exhibit, sir."

After a few minutes more conversation the Colonel rose. "I will now go back to the ballroom," he declared himself. "Liberty, I came aboard tonight with your third cousin, Miss Lucy Sanders."

"That so? Come down, Marce Drace, and I'll introduce you to her."

"Think, sir, that she has retired," the Colonel was quick to interpose, realizing that he had thoughtlessly suggested an invasion of his own territory.

"Not while there is a fiddle going," said Shottle. "Come on."

Into Virgil's heart flew the hope that the slave's cousin might be the burlesque girl with the roses; there could be no mistaking her, after meeting her, for in that brief gaze he had noticed away a master's painting of her, etched in his mind. So he was quick to hasten below with Shottle, the Colonel panting behind them.

Miss Lucy had just left off dancing. No, she was not the thrilling barbarian, but Drace swallowed his disappointment dry, like a swamp man taking quinine. Shottle might have reflected that never before had his king woman been so glad to see him. On his arm she hung as she cooed, but her eyes were on Drace, and he listened, not to her words, but to the music of her accent, soft as the notes of a dove. Like a frosted-bitten Shanghai, the Colonel stood first on one foot and then on the other. Drace politely asked Miss Lucy to dance with him, and the Colonel dropped onto a chair. Shottle sat beside him.

"She takes to him like a duck to water," said the slave, looking after his master and his third cousin.

The Colonel sighed. "Liberty Shottle, he said, 'I am going to tell you something.'"

"Out with it."

"It is not a matter to be spoken of so lightly, sir."

"All right; go ahead."

"Liberty Shottle, it is this: I am deeply in love with your cousin, and before the dawn of another day I shall pop the question to her."

"Pop the ducal! Lead me ten dollars."

"You shock me, sir."

"Tell you what I'll do," persisted Shottle. "Let me have ten, and I'll make her a speech in your favor that will wink her hair."

"Shottle!"

"And I can do it. They've got my speech on the Periodic Age hung up right now at the university. The governor of North Carolina said to the governor of South Carolina, just after making his historic remark about its being a long time between details, that it was the most powerful speech he ever heard."

The Colonel nodded, and swore his refusal to enter into any financial transaction involving his heart; and Shottle, realizing that his efforts were vain, sank down into melancholy silence. Miss Lucy, meanwhile, was introducing Drace to some of her friends, not to young women, but to men and to ladies well advanced along the path.

Drace realized that this society was far from the creature that Shottle and Colonel Josh might reflect; for the most part it was composed of ladies of exquisite refinement, and most strong in the dignity of medicine or the law.

"You have not chosen an opportune time to visit New Orleans," an old judge remarked to Drace. "We are forced to live under the infamy of a corrupting government, sir. Political schemers, who in the North could never attain to even the nearest of office, come down here where we are distinguished and elect themselves legislators, governors—representatives of parishes that they have never seen. Heavy taxes are levied, and they pocket the money. The governor was not elected, but named by a gang of freebooters. The real citizens of the state have no vote. Their former slaves and the crooks who now manage them control the ballot-box. This is the true state of affairs. Wait till you see New Orleans, sir."

This talk was too serious for Miss Lucy. She plucked Drace away to walk with her, and she hummed laughing on his arm as everywhere his eyes searched for the girl with the roses in vain! And presently he excused himself and went disconsolately to bed.

WINTER STORAGE FOR POTATO CROP

Property Built Warehouse Holds
Tubers at Right Temperature.

VENTILATION IS NECESSARY

Losses in Storage Can Be Largely Prevented by Proper Construction and Intelligent Management of Storage Houses.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 127 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose one-cent stamp for reply.

Point growers in the northern section of the country use different methods of storing their crops through the winter. Some employ the old method of a straw-lined trench with a straw covering and earth thrown over it. Others have built of timber or concrete underground storage cellars. In some sections, notably Maine, where huge crops of potatoes are grown, the tubers are carried through winter, or until such time as they are marketed, in warehouses which are provided with artificial heat. In view of these facts, investigators for the United States Department of Agriculture say, an intensive study of the subject has not been made, and not much reliable data available.

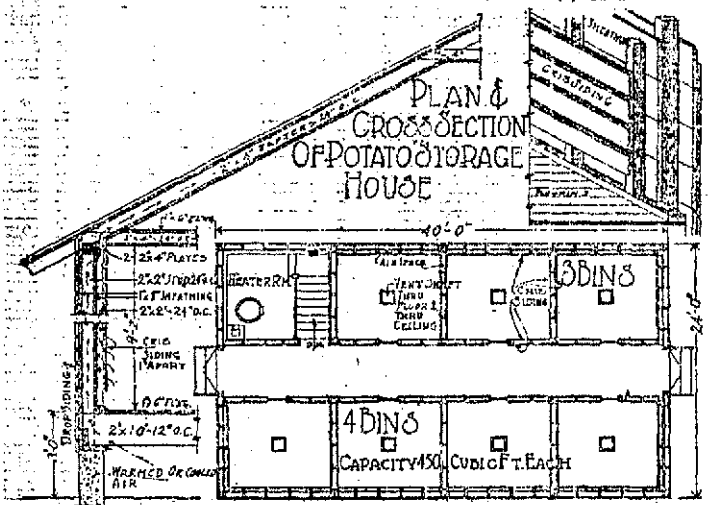

The reason for this lack of intensive study are given by William Stuart of the federal department in Farmers Bulletin No. 947 on "Potato Storage ed, of first-class lumber, such as may be secured at almost all lumber yards. The foundation is of concrete, on which are set walls of 2x10-inch timbers, the floor line being 3 feet above the ground. The cross-section of the building in the left of the drawing and the detail of wall construction in the upper right hand corner, show the materials used and the method of construction.

It will be noted that the exterior walls of the building are covered with drop siding, nailed to the 2x4-inch studs. Ship-lap siding is nailed to the inside of the studs, providing a 4-inch air space between the interior and exterior walls. This acts as an insulation against heat and cold and also provides means for air circulation. A 2x2-inch timber nailed to the inside wall provides nailing space for the walls of the storage bins, which are of crib siding, permitting a circulation of air through the walls of the bins. The floor of the building is laid of 1x6-inch matched flooring.

The building provides space for seven bins, each 8 by 10 feet, inside measurement. It is considered the best practice to extend the walls of the bins up only six feet, to permit ease in filling and emptying and to provide plenty of air space above. These dimensions give a capacity of 400 cubic feet. Through the center of these bins runs a vent shaft, which is perforated. The shaft runs through the ceiling to the attic space and to the roof ventilator. With the draft provided by the air spaces in the walls and through the air shafts, a circulation of air through the stored potatoes is assured. The outside air vents in the concrete foundation may be opened or closed, as the temperature of the house demands.

For use in extreme weather, space at one side of the building is provided for a heating plant; the floor of the heater room being on a level with the ground. Pipes from the heater are run to the space under the floor, so that the warm air may be carried through the ventilators.

and Storage Warehouses." "When potatoes are plentiful, they are relatively cheap," says the bulletin. "Little attention is given to such wastage and loss as usually occur in storage; in fact, a considerable loss was considered inevitable. With high prices and scarcity of supply the need of conserving the entire production for seed and food purposes is of the utmost importance."

However, it has been demonstrated, the bulletin continues, that losses in storage can be largely prevented by the proper construction and intelligent management of storage houses. When it is considered that potatoes are one of the most important food crops in the United States, it is sheer economic waste to fail to provide proper means of conserving the crop.

The primary object of storage is to hold potatoes, which are more or less perishable, in a salable condition throughout as long a period as may be economically desirable. The main, or late crop of potatoes is intended for winter use, and must be stored, the early or truck crop being disposed of direct from the field as harvested. The factors provided by the storage warehouse must be of such a character as to protect the potatoes from extremes of heat and cold and from the light. Other facts of less importance perhaps, are humidity and aeration and size of the pile or bin in which the potatoes are stored.

Various notions are current regarding the best temperature at which to hold potatoes in storage. The temperatures which are generally recommended are between 32 and 45 degrees Fahrenheit, the freezing point of potatoes being between 25 and 28 degrees. To hold this temperature in the northern section of the country, where the principal Irish potato crops are grown, there usually must be provision for artificial heat, as well as storing the potatoes in a water-tight building with insulated outside walls.

It was with this idea in mind—holding an even temperature in the storage house—that the building shown in the accompanying illustrations was designed. Also it will be noted from the cross-section and detail drawing of the exterior wall, and from the floor plan, that good ventilation has been provided.

The warehouse shown is 24 feet wide and 40 feet long. It is constructed

ANCHORS OF MANY PATTERNS

Anything Sufficiently Weighty Used Before the Invention of Modern Articles With Hooks.

The Britannica describes the anchor as "an instrument of iron or other heavy material used for holding ships or boats in any locality required, and preventing them from drifting by winds, tides, currents or other causes. This is done by the anchor (after it is let go from the ship by means of the cable) fixing itself in the ground and there holding the vessel fast. . . . The most ancient anchors consisted of large stones, bank full of stones, sacks filled with sand, or logs of wood loaded with lead. Of this kind were the anchors of the ancient Greeks, which, according to Apollonius Rhodius and Strabo, were sometimes made of wood. Such anchors held the vessel merely by their weight and by the friction along the bottom. Iron was afterward introduced for the construction of anchors, a great improvement was made by forming them with teeth or 'flukes' to fasten themselves into the bottom. . . . The invention of the teeth is ascribed by Pliny to the Tuscanus, but Pausanias gives the credit to Midas, king of Phrygia."

PECULIAR ACTION OF TIDES

Scientists at a Loss to Explain Rise and Fall of Sea Around the Society Islands.

The peculiarities of the tides in the Society group of islands, in the South sea, were remarked as long ago as the days of Captain Cook. In reality, the rise and fall of the sea—which seldom exceeds 15 inches—can scarcely be called tides, for it is not influenced by the moon's high or low, comes lavishly at midnight and noon, and at sunrise and sunset the water is always low, says a writer in Harper's.

The local belief is that these so-called tides are due to wind; it is true that the mornings are usually calm and that the breeze springs up toward midday, to die away in the late afternoon. At 11 or 12 o'clock, then, an horridly stiff breeze over the low barrier of coral and causes the sheltered waters of the lagoon to rise—a real theory: until one stops to think that the hours about midnight (when the tide is precisely as high as at noon) are among the calmest of the day, and that the noon tide does not fall on days of glassy calmness.

Musical Note.

A very deaf old woman walking along the street saw an Italian carrying a peanut roaster. She stood looking at it a while, shook her head, and said: "No, I shan't give you any money for such a use as that. I can't hear any of the tunes, and besides it smells as if there were something burning inside."—The Congressionalist.

STORIES OF GREAT INDIANS

By Elmo Scott Watson
Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union
SITTING BULL WHO WAS THE INDIAN SPHINK

WHEN historians have written the last word about the American Indian, they will be unable to agree in their estimate of Sitting Bull (Tatanka Sunka). Perhaps no other Indian ever received as much notoriety; probably none even deserved it less.

He was not a hereditary chief nor a great war leader. Some who knew him have called him a coward; others say he was brave enough but prudent. In the strictest sense he was not a medicine man, as he frequently has been called, although his personal "medicine" was strong. Who, then, and what was Sitting Bull? He was a keen judge of human nature and he was lucky in his prophetic, notably in predicting the destruction of Great Custer. He was a great leader with some mysterious power over his people.

Perhaps they saw personified in him the undying spirit of resistance to the white man. "Sitting Bull" made an enemy of the white man, and he was a great leader. He was the keynote of his whole career. It resulted in his leading his people to Canada where they remained until 1881, when starvation forced him to return to the United States and surrender.

Sitting Bull had a grim sense of humor. Once a trader at Fort Buford gave him a red shirt with the suggestion that he wear it when he came for war. Sitting Bull accepted the garment with the remark that "right now would be a good time to put it on." He did so and when his hand left the trading post they turned and fired a volley into the building.

The old chief had two wives, and when Bishop Marty tried to persuade him to divorce one, Sitting Bull replied: "The black gown is my friend and I will do this for him. I will put away both my wives and he will get me a white wife." The proposition was not accepted.

In the Sitting Bull Bull had said: "The whites may get me at last, but I will have a good time until then."

He proved a true prophet in saying that. In an effort to quiet the ghost dance excitement, Indian police were sent on December 15, 1890, to arrest Sitting Bull. Some of the Brakpapa resisted and in the melee that followed Sitting Bull was shot dead. Like King Philip and Pontiac he was killed by members of his own race, but as he foretold, the "whites got him at last."

Owed Their Lives to Parrot.

In the terrible earthquake in 1909 which destroyed several cities in Sicily, many people were imprisoned under the ruins of their houses, and were rescued only because they made their voices heard by rescue parties. In one case a voice was heard from a great pile of ruins crying, "Murat! Murat!" Several hours were spent by a band of eager diggers in removing overburdened stone and debris, at the end of which a hungry gray parrot was discovered. In a fit of rage the men were about to dash the bird to bits when one of them noticed a movement in the pile of plaster on what had been the first floor of a mansion. Two women were buried there, both alive as it turned out, and both recovered from their awful experience, thanks to the good voice and education of poor Poll!

More than a hundred thousand perished in that one city of Messina alone, all the buildings in it being shaken to the ground in 31 seconds.

Department of Justice Makes Best Record in Its History

Has Performed Prodigious Amount of Work, Successfully Defended Government and Instituted Proceedings Against War Frauds.

S. REPRESENTATIVE JOSEPH WALSH (MASS.), MEMBER HOUSE COMMITTEE ON JUDICIARY

The activities and accomplishments of the Department of Justice during the past 15 months comprise the most successful record that department has made since its establishment. The largest amount of business in the history of that department has been transacted for the current year on less money than was appropriated for the preceding year.

A veritable avalanche of business was closing the docket in nearly every United States District Court and new cases being entered in unprecedented numbers when Attorney General Daugherty took charge of the Department of Justice March 4, 1921. He found the department disorganized. It was necessary to make a survey not only of his own force but of the various cases pending in the several United States District Courts throughout the country. This was accomplished with thoroughness and dispatch.

Early in his incumbency Attorney General Daugherty began an investigation of the so-called War Fraud cases. After he had thoroughly surveyed the situation, he said his staff were ready to proceed he asked for an appropriation of half a million dollars to enable him to employ additional and competent special attorneys to conduct the actual work of grand jury investigation and prosecution. The men whom he selected for this task were skilled lawyers. Former Senator Charles S. Thomas, of Colorado, a Democrat who was conspicuous in the Senate investigation of the aircraft scandal; former Congressman C. F. Reavis, of Nebraska, who was a member of the House Committee which investigated the expenditures of the War Department; former Congressman R. D. MacCullough, of Ohio, also a member of that Committee, and Mr. Meier Steinbrink, of New York, who assisted Charles E. Hughes in the famous aircraft inquiry of 1918, and who was employed as Special Counsel for the House Committee on investigating war expenditures. It is safe to say no staff could have been selected who were better qualified by their legal attainments and by their particular experience and knowledge of the war graft situation.

Never in the history of the Department of Justice have the anti-trust laws been so vigorously prosecuted as during the last 15 months. For the first time jail sentences were imposed as a punishment for violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act in the case of United States vs. Alexander Reed, et al. The department at this time has under investigation more than 60 cases of alleged violations of the Anti-Trust Act and has pending in the courts 26 such cases. Since March 4, 1921, the Attorney General's office has won 109 cases in the United States Supreme Court and lost 41. In that time it has tried 166 suits in the various United States Courts and won 110. The department has been very successful in defending the government in the United States Court of Claims where litigation has greatly increased as a result of war contracts and tax cases. Twenty suits were decided in this court on June 22, in which the Attorney General's department appeared for the government. In these 20 cases the government sued for the aggregate of $16,519,593. The total of the amounts allowed was only $533,385.

This brief is an outline of some of the more important activities of the Department of Justice since March 4, 1921. An enormous amount of work has been performed and every branch of the judicial service is characterized by energy, intelligence and dispatch. The record of the department under the present administration not only reflects great credit upon Attorney General Daugherty and President Harding, but it inspires confidence and respect of our people everywhere in the courts and in those in whom the responsibility and power of administering the law is invested. It will remind our people that this is a government of laws and not of men.

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"WIFE AGAINST WIFE," a First National picture, starring Pauline Stark, is being shown today at this theatre. The plot is extraordinary, showing how one jealous married woman seeks to bring unhappiness and ruin to another and much besides. It has been well produced under the direction of Whitman Bennett, and the acting of Pauline Stark in the leading role is a triumph for the silent dramatic art.

Emily Fitzroy is splendid in the role of the jealous wife of Sinner Dole, the artist, and Percy Marriot makes a very convincing and unhappy husband. The story deals with the vindictive persecution of Gabrielle Gautier, the artist's model, by Mrs. Dole, following her husband's death. Gabrielle is happily married to Dr. Bristol, and the revengeful widow gets employment in their household as bookkeeper. She tells the doctor that Gabrielle had stolen the love of her husband and she seeks to undermine the love of Gabrielle for Dr. Bristol by attempting to show that his beautiful laboratory assistant is winning his affections. Wednesday and Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Carter DeHaven will be seen in "My Lady Friends."

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE GIRL IN HIS ROOM," showing today at this theatre, presents Alice Calhoun in the stellar role. Miss Alice Calhoun, Virginia's beautiful young star, was fortunate in the selection of this whimsical, entertaining comedy for her initial appearance in stellar honors. The theatre-going public took her to their hearts, and ever since her popularity has been growing in leaps and bounds. Christened "Princess" by her devoted mother to offset the more common name of Jones, the little comedy artist is mistaken for a reigning princess who is being sought by her royal subjects and has some exciting adventures. Miss Calhoun is cast as a young girl whose mother dies at her birth and whose father refuses to see her. Later he repents and sends her to boarding school. He appears as the agent of her father, who she has never seen. He provides a home by being untrue to a trust. Several complications arise which result in the young girl finding not only happiness for life but a father as well. The action takes place for the most part in the city with a few scenes in a boarding school and a few others in the open.

Alice Calhoun is supported by Warner Baxter, Robert Anderson, Faye O'Neil and Eve Southern. "The Girl in His Room" was directed by Edward Jose. "Restless Souls," with Earle Williams in the leading role, will be shown Wednesday and Thursday.

THE ORPHEUM.

"THE ORDEAL," the leading attraction today at this theatre, presents Agnes Ayers in the leading role. Conrad Nagel, one of the most popular leading men of the screen, whose recent appearances in Paramount pictures have won him a large following of fans, plays opposite Agnes Ayers. Mr. Nagel never has been cast to finer advantage in any play than in which he has been seen this season. Mr. Nagel's role is that of a young doctor, and it is said to be a remarkably true to life character as its creator was himself a doctor. Before he became an actor, Mr. Maughan was a graduate physician in Great Britain. In America, however, his medical skill would be a total loss as he is licensed to practice in England only. Mr. Maughan has not "doctored" for some years as he has entirely given up the little black bag and stethoscope in favor of the typewriter, a medium with which he has written such remarkably successful plays as "The Land of Promise," "The Moon and Sixpence," "The Girl in His Room" and "Of Human Bondage." Wednesday and Thursday Thomas Morgan will appear in "A Prince There Was."

BEADS ARE HOLDING FAVOR

Embellishment conspicuous on blouses as well as on dresses for coming season.

The use of head embellishment is conspicuous not only on dresses for the coming season, but blouses show a marked predilection for its use as well. Instead of losing their popularity, as many had predicted, heads have taken on a new lease of life, and judging from statements made by costume designers, beads are only now coming into their own. New colors and combinations, novel designs and the like have much to do with the hearty continuation of the mode.

New Things Come In A-Bowing!

COOL NIGHTS and the first turning leaves aren't the only hints of Fall. Into the store, day by day, the new season's things are coming—forecasting the happiness that will be ours once Summer has really gone. It makes an afternoon really pleasant just to browse around and see what these new things are. They have the charm of novelty, the attraction of quality and the lure of a reasonable price.

Caravan Prints From the Mystic East.

There's something of a barbaric splendor about this new silk crepe.

True, its designs resemble paisley but they have a beauty much deeper and much more delightful—suggesting as they do the eastern splendor of the Taj Mahal.

You'll think it particularly good to use as trimming with a dark silk frock—as a coat lining—or for a similar service. It is $5.00 a yard.

New Ideas In Table Damask

A change over, where is the watchword for the coming Autumn season.

Even table cloths will take on a new manner as you may see in this new cotton mercerized damask with blue border and wide blue stripes. 64 to 70 inches wide and $1 to $1.50 a yard. Other damasks show grounds of solid color—pink or blue—with fairy-light figures on them. All are of the finest quality, of course.

Main Floor

Footwear for Fine Fall Days $8.

Fall's the season of the great outdoors and these are new shoes to wear.

A blucher oxford—stout and sturdy—comes in black Norwegian calf with clover brass eyelets and a new French toe, $8.00.

Its walking mate appears in Tony Brown calf-skin with square brass eyelets, perforations and waterproof sole, $8.00, too.

Main Floor

Imported Irish Dimity, Only 60c

By rights this material should be selling for 75c a yard.

We were fortunate in obtaining a supply at a price through our New York connections so you can save 15c a yard on it. Comes in two blue checks and is crisp and sheer.

Other Fall White Goods have also put in their appearance—long cloths, tablecloths, plain and striped flannels, etc. They will interest needlewomen.

Main Floor

Imported—Every Stitch Hand Done

But that doesn't sum up the virtues of these new house aprons.

They are as neatly and as daintily made as anything we've shown in many a moon. They come either in plain or checked gingham—green, blue, rose—and are notable for their bright appliques and general loveliness. A bayonet at any price, they sell here for as little as $3.50 to $4.75.

Second Floor

Things From Fashion's Horn o' Plenty

Perhaps it will be a new sleeve treatment—or the fashioning of a blouse.

It may be the way the newest frocks are draped—or the sumptuous beauty of a fur-trimmed coat. At any rate we can promise you thrills aplenty any time you can drop up to the Apparel Section. A representative showing of all that's new for Fall is there and we can promise that you will like it.

FAIR PRICE AGREEMENT ABROGATED

National Fuel Distributor Announces Suspension Pending Emergency Legislation.

STATES HOLD AUTHORITY

By Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Federal control of coal prices and distribution of fuel by volunteer organization stopped Monday pending passage of emergency legislation by Congress. Abrogation of the fair price agreement with non-union coal operators effective today was announced by Federal Fuel Distributor Spencer, who said the various districts and general committees of the emergency fuel organization would cease to function next Saturday. Until then, Mr. Spencer said, the organization will be busy cleaning up the orders now on its hands.

"The agreement as to price restraint with the non-union operators," Mr. Spencer said, "expires today with the resumption of the union bituminous mines. About 75 per cent of the operators have held to this agreement and it is felt that the public has been served a very large sum."

Pending the action of Congress and the state authorities, the only restraint upon price is the schedule of fair prices declared by governors or by state coal commissioners in some of the states to which it is earnestly hoped the operators and dealers will conform. These prices are about $4.50 a ton, maximum, in the Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia and Tennessee fields, $3.75 for Pennsylvania thick vein and $4.75 for thin vein. Standards have not yet been set in other states.

"The legislation before Congress can only control the price of coal moving over state lines; that is, interstate commerce. The price of coal produced and consumed in a state together with the charges which wholesalers and retailers within the state may make, the latter including even interstate coal, should be controlled by the state authorities. There can be no real control of profiteering unless the state authorities act."

Rapid resumption of production in the various bituminous fields as shown by geological survey estimates, Mr. Spencer said, indicated a production of 8,000,000 tons, this week as compared with 6,400,000 tons last week.

Part of a Collection. "Just a moment," interrupted the defendant's lawyer. "You say you despise this man you are suing for $50,000, yet you bring his alleged love letters into court carefully tied up with a pink ribbon."

"There is no sentiment in that," replied the fair plaintiff, haughtily. "I merely used a pink ribbon to distinguish his from the others."

SKIRT IS OF WHITE FLANNEL

Showing a plaited skirt of white flannel with the loveliest sort of sweater of jade green, the stripes being on the wrong side, giving it a charming effect.

LATE DRESSES ARE LONGER

Tightly Draped Models Are Worn on the Street by Well Dressed Women.

The warm weather has brought numerous interesting costumes. The most striking feature of the new dresses is their increased length, which is becoming more the vogue daily. The semi-long skirt appears to be less favored and is certainly less graceful than the one coming to the break of the ankle. It has been noticed that tightly draped models are worn on the street by well dressed women. The lines are long and straight, the gown drawn to the side, but not supplemented by much fullness on the hips to interfere with the slender line.

Crepe materials predominate now, but the satin surfaces will appear soon, it is thought.

The fur that draped gowns are not good for night but are rather stout for obvious after seeing some of the heavier figures tightly costumed along these lines.

Black chiffon, in a many tiered petal mode, made a cool looking frock seen on the street in the afternoon. Another gown was all in periwinkle shade, made of cotton crepe with sleeves and side panels of the same color of chiffon. A hat carried out the complete effect of the shade.

One frock appropriate for street wear showed a triple fine white stripe on a background of navy, the stripes running up and down. Panels of soft material were the only trimming, and the hat was of crepe, also in dark blue and white.

Correct.

"Tommy" asked the teacher, "what can you tell of America's foreign relations at the present time?"

"They're all pretty poor," said the brightest boy in the class.
